

Натисніть тут, щоб

КУПИТИ КНИГУ НА САЙТІ

або

замовляйте по телефону:

(0352) 28-74-89, 51-11-41

(067) 350-18-70

(066) 727-17-62

ВДУМЛИВЕ ЧИТАННЯ

Дорогі друзі!

Пропоновані тексти для вдумливого читання містять лексичний матеріал широкого тематичного спектру, складені відповідно до вікових особливостей шестикласників і відповідають чинній програмі МОН України з англійської мови. Вони сприятимуть активізації лексичних та граматичних знань, навичок логічного мислення школярів.

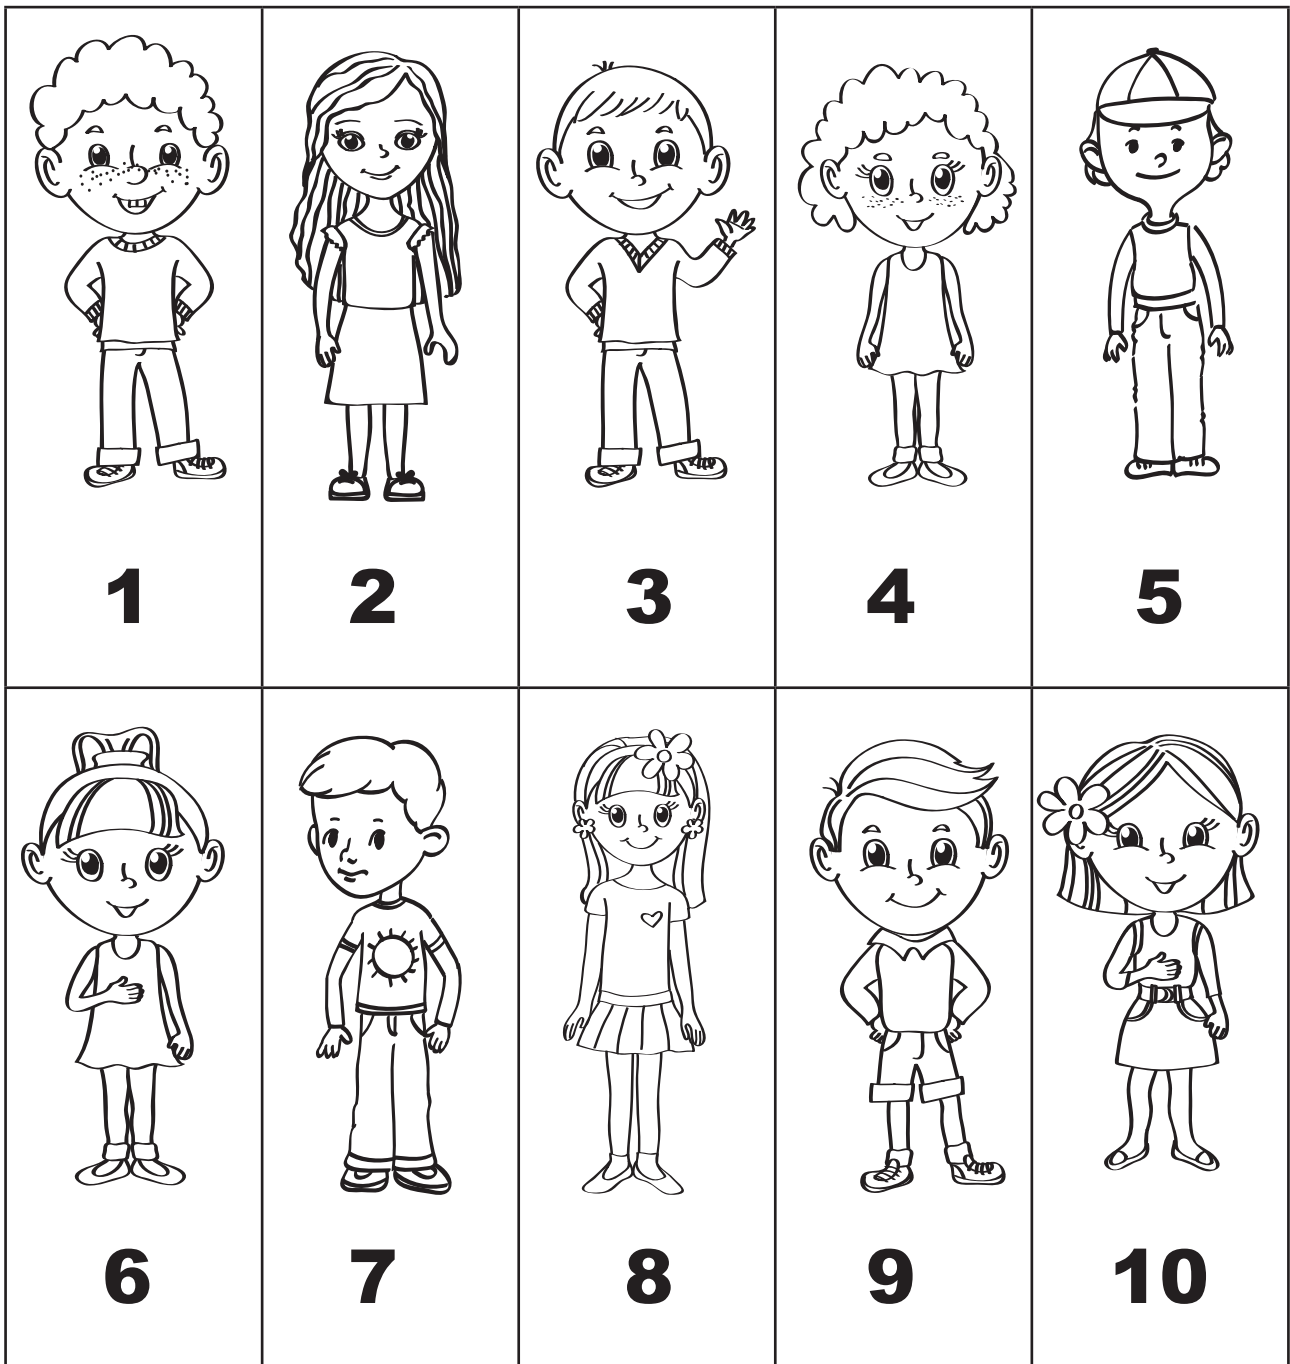

У кожному тексті є певна кількість зайвих, помилково вжитих слів, які ви повинні виписати у тому порядку, як вони зустрічаються в тексті. Ці слова складуть речення, яке передає тему тексту.

Пропонований посібник складається із 10 карток із текстами, 10 карток із відповідями, 1 картки із зображенням ваших помічників і помічниць.

Прочитайте текст, знайдіть заховані слова, складіть із них речення, перевірте правильність виконання завдання за допомогою карток-відповідей та розмалюйте свого помічника чи помічницю.

ВДУМЛИВЕ ЧИТАННЯ

- Виконай завдання і розмалюй свого помічника чи помічницю.

TASK 1

- Read attentively the story and find out 7 odd words.
- Write them down on the lines given below.
- The words will form a sentence. Translate it.

The Thief Caught

One night a thief took a man's horse and rode away. As the man could not find his horse anywhere, he went to the market where they sold horses to buy the another.

When he came there, he found his own horse among those horse being sold. He came up to it and said, "This horse is mine."

"It cannot be yours," explained the thief, "for I have had it for more than was a year."

The true owner then put his hands over the eyes of the horse and said, "If this is your horse, tell me in which eye it is blind."

The thief, who had not looked at the horse with care, did not know what answer to give not. At last he said, "It is blind in the left eye."

"You are wrong!" said the owner. "Oh!" said the thief, "I spoke too soon. I meant to say blind the right eye. Then the owner took his hands from the eyes of the horse and said, "Now everybody can see that you are the thief. The horse is not blind in either eye. I asked at those questions only to show the truth."

"Caught! Caught!" shouted all the men who stood by, and the thief had to give up the horse to his all rightful owner.

Vocabulary

thief — злодій

blind — сліпий

owner — власник

with care — уважно

---

---

TASK 1. KEY

The Thief Caught

One night a thief took a man's horse and rode away. As the man could not find his horse anywhere, he went to the market where they sold horses to buy the another.

When he came there, he found his own horse among those horse being sold. He came up to it and said, "This horse is mine."

"It cannot be yours," explained the thief, "for I have had it for more than was a year."

The true owner then put his hands over the eyes of the horse and said, "If this is your horse, tell me in which eye it is blind."

The thief, who had not looked at the horse with care, did not know what answer to give not. At last he said, "It is blind in the left eye."

"You are wrong!" said the owner. "Oh!" said the thief, "I spoke too soon. I meant to say blind the right eye. Then the owner took his hands from the eyes of the horse and said, "Now everybody can see that you are the thief. The horse is not blind in either eye. I asked at those questions only to show the truth."

"Caught! Caught!" shouted all the men who stood by, and the thief had to give up the horse to his all rightful owner.

The horse was not blind at all.

TASK 2

- Read attentively the story and find out 6 odd words.
- Write them down on the lines given below.
- The words will form a sentence. Translate it.

Filmstar

Pauline loved the cinema and wanted to become a filmstar. When she was twelve she said to her parents, “I want to be a filmstar.”

But it was not easy. After she left school, she got into films — not as a star — she became one of the people in a crowd scene.

One evening the man at the agency called her up and said, “There’s a job for you tomorrow, Pauline. Come at eight o’clock. You’ll be a secretary.”

Pauline reached the studios at a quarter to eight. She waited three hours before they came to her Pauline scene.

The scene was very short: the star, a famous American actor, wanted to come and stopped in front of where Pauline was sitting.

“I want you to become look at Harry when he comes in,” explained the director, “and say, ‘Mr. Marlowe, there’s a call for you!’ Can you say that?”

Pauline said she could and did everything the director told her to do.

The director was a very pleased, and the star smiled at her.

“That’s great,” said the director. “Thanks.”

Pauline was very happy filmstar that evening.

Some months later she booked two seats for the premiere and went to see her film with Michael, her boy-friend.

It was a good film but there was no Pauline in it. Her scene together with many other unimportant scenes had been cut out.

---

---

TASK 2. KEY

Filmstar

Pauline loved the cinema and wanted to become a filmstar. When she was twelve she said to her parents, “I want to be a filmstar.”

But it was not easy. After she left school, she got into films — not as a star — she became one of the people in a crowd scene.

One evening the man at the agency called her up and said, “There’s a job for you tomorrow, Pauline. Come at eight o’clock. You’ll be a secretary.”

Pauline reached the studios at a quarter to eight. She waited three hours before they came to her Pauline scene.

The scene was very short: the star, a famous American actor, wanted to come and stopped in front of where Pauline was sitting.

“I want you to become look at Harry when he comes in,” explained the director, “and say, ‘Mr. Marlowe, there’s a call for you!’ Can you say that?”

Pauline said she could and did everything the director told her to do.

The director was a very pleased, and the star smiled at her.

“That’s great,” said the director. “Thanks.”

Pauline was very happy filmstar that evening.

Some months later she booked two seats for the premiere and went to see her film with Michael, her boy-friend.

It was a good film but there was no Pauline in it. Her scene together with many other unimportant scenes had been cut out.

Pauline wanted to become a filmstar.